

Parkland activists heal over years while pushing gun reform

By: Kelli Kennedy Associated Press, 13 November 2021

Topic:

How gun law affects the population and young people (School Shooting victims)

Ethos: March For Our Lives has evolved into a 300-chapter organization that has had a hand in helping pass many of the 130 gun violence prevention bills approved across the country since 2018 and regularly files amicus briefs in gun-related lawsuits. Page 19, line 16-23 → Ethos, Pathos and Logos

Pathos: Jaclyn Corin talks about how painful it is to look back at the shootings, and the whole article has a lot of feelings in it.

Logos: logically, the gun law being the way it is, will make sure more school shootings will happen. If the gun law changes, so will the circumstances.
Intention: The intention is to enlighten about problems with different opinions about gun policy.

Language:

- The sentence structure is complex
- They talk about something negative (Gun law, school shooting) with positive solutions (The organizations)
- They recite the word "shooter/shooting" to highlight the seriousness behind the victims. they tell multiple stories of victims. "Gun violence" is also recited a couple of times, negative.

Reciever:

The government, and all the americans. They should reconsider their gun laws, and think about their actions.

Circumstances

The school shooter from "The Parkland School in 2018", has pleaded guilty and a trial for sentencing is going on.
